A Pension Decision. In the pension case of John Van Possen, late of the second Missouri cavalry, Assistant Secretary Bussey has decided that the claimant is entitled to a pension, although the war records show that he was a deserter. In the evidence, however, it appears that while at his home on a sick leave Van Fossen enlisted in the 9th Iowa cavalry, where he served until honorably discharged. The assistant secretary holds that the claimant in this case was not a deserter in the sense that bars from pension.

DEPEW POLISHING MR. MORSE.

In the Triangular Rivalry of the Rest Washington Hopes.

IT'S A VERY PRETTY PARROT OF A TIME

The representatives of the four cities aspiring to the honor of the site for the world's fair are busy making final preparations for the conflict to begin in the House Monday. Not content with the floods of eloquence poured out upon the floor of the House during the past two days, they are laboring earnestly privately with the few memwho are still uncommitted, or who are believed to be open to a change of heart. Nobody expects that the site will be selected upon the first ballot, so that the opportunities to pledge members to a second choice are unusually good.

It is in the rivalry of the other cities that Washington's chance lies, supported by the sentiment in favor of having national celebrations at the seat of government. A HUNDRED ON THE START. The first vote in the House will probably be on a motion made by Mr. Mills, perhaps, to lay the whole matter on the table. That motion is certain of defeat. Then the vote will be taken on the site. After the site question is settled then the details of the bill have to be settled and the whole matter voted on. It is possible that after the site is fixed the whole bill may be debated. If by any possibility they can get the vote on the general propos tion first the chances of there being a fair somewhere will be greatly increased.

If all the many conflicting interests are adjusted and the bill passed by the House it has no smooth sailing assured in the Senate. The Senate committee has held but one meeting since their general hearings.

This meeting was held yesterday and at it the decision was reached not to prepare a bill or take any other action until the House had got through with the site controversy. If New York should win in the House, it is believed that the bill would be killed through New York influences in the Senate.

DEATH OF AN ASTOR.

The Heir of Many Millions and a Brave

Soldier. New York, Feb. 22.-John Jacob Astor died suddenly at 4 o'clock this morning at his res-dence, 33d street and 5th a ue. His death was unexpected by his family. It is supposed to be due to heart failure.

Mr. Astor complained yesterday morning that he was feeling unwell, but in the evening he went out to dinner. Soon after his return home he became so ill that his family were greatly alarmed and sent for their physician, Dr. Fordyce Barker, who resides near by, at 34 East 38th street, He at once hastened to Mr. Astor's bedside, but when hastened to Mr. Astor's beusine, be reached it he found his patient already dying. Hardly any pulse was perceptible. Mr. Astor continued to sink slowly until 4 o'clock this morning, when he died. There were present at his death bed his wife, Wm. Waldorf Astor and a couple of other relatives. Mr. Astor was born in 1822. John Jacob Astor was the eldest son of the late Wm. Astor and grandson of the original John Jacob Astor, who founded the fortunes of John Jacob Astor, who founded the fortunes of the family. He was the head of the third gen-eration of the Astor family. He was in his sixty-seventh year, having been born in 1823. In 1875 his father died, leaving John Jacob a two-thirds share of his estate valued at $200,000,000. During the civil war Mr. Astor went to the front and served with credit as an aid described for the Acceleration. credit as an aid-de-camp to Gen. McClellan. He married a Miss Gibbs of South Carolina, who died about two years ago. He is succeeded by his only son, William Waldorf Astor, who was minister to Italy some years ago.
